Work Experience

2023–Present

The National Library of Israel | Freelance Product Designer

I design digital experiences that make complex collections and information easier to explore and navigate. My work spans information architecture, interaction design, UI design, and the development and maintenance of a shared design system.

Key projects include the October 7 Interactive Map, archive item pages, and search experiences. I work closely with product managers and collaborate with developers and design stakeholders to turn complex requirements and technical constraints into clear, consistent interfaces.
